Gov. John Kasich
Republican

Hi, I'm John Kasich, the Governor of Ohio. For public leaders nurturing a climate for economic growth is our greatest moral purpose. Economic growth is an end to itself, but the means for us to get jobs. That helps us reach our God-given potential. Strengthen our families, and strengthen our communities.

I'm proud that in my state, as our economy has become stronger. We have used our growing prosperity to reach out to our fellow Ohioans who might need a hand.

We've created new opportunities for people with disabilities, to live independently, and to find meaningful jobs.

We're making healthcare work better and making it more available for those in need. So they can get, and stay healthy.

We've taken unprecedented strides to fight the evil with human trafficking and treat the victims, not as criminals, but as survivors who need our help.

And in welfare programs, we're holding government accountable for results. Government should deliver the services it promises in an efficient way. Or we'll find another way.

These ideas can work across America to make our country stronger for everyone. And as America becomes stronger, we're better able to lead around the world. The world is more chaotic now, than ever before. And though we cannot solve every problem. We can show leadership by doing our part.

We must project strength yes, but also the generosity that is our legacy. For those fleeing wars, and those fighting disease.

America makes a difference, because we can. And because it's right. It's a tall order, but it starts here at home. And when realized, that life is about more than ourselves. And when realized that we can begin to create justice and healing in our world.

That is my mission, not as a governor, or for someone who wants to be president. Just as a regular old person.

Join me in making it your mission. Wherever you live and whatever you do.
